

SAN MIGUEL DE ALLENDE / PRIVATE GUIDE

The San Miguel Seller's Playbook

A practical, polished framework for preparing, presenting, and navigating a sale with care.

BLAZE BEASLEY

Prepare the home and the story

The strongest presentation begins well before photography or a launch date.

See it with fresh eyes

Walk through the property as a first-time visitor. Make a focused list of maintenance, clutter, lighting, landscaping, and small repairs that may distract from the experience of the home. Prioritize work that is appropriate for your goals and budget.

Organize the details

Gather the material a serious buyer may need to understand the home: available property records, service information, improvement notes, and other relevant documents. Your qualified local professionals can advise on what is appropriate to share and when.

Position with context

A good positioning conversation considers the property's character, setting, condition, and the competing choices a buyer may see. It is not a promise about price or timing; it is a disciplined way to present the home to the right audience.

BEFORE PHOTOGRAPHY

Resolve visible maintenance items where practical.

Edit rooms so their scale and purpose are easy to read.

Prepare a concise list of meaningful features and improvements.

Confirm showing access, pet plans, and privacy preferences.

Launch, show, evaluate, plan

A sale benefits from an organized process and clear communication.

Present the property well

Editorial-quality photography, video, staging, and accurate property information can help a home make a composed first impression. Review the final listing materials carefully so they reflect the property honestly and clearly.

Make showings workable

Set a showing plan that respects your routine and the home. Keep essential details available, clarify access expectations, and decide in advance how you would like feedback and updates shared.

Evaluate offers deliberately

An offer is more than a headline number. Work with your advisor and qualified professionals to understand its terms, conditions, timing, and responsibilities. Take the time needed to compare the whole proposal and ask questions before you respond.

Plan for the handoff

As a sale progresses, maintain an organized record, stay aligned with the professionals advising you, and plan the practical details of your move or transition. Legal, tax, and notarial matters should be handled with qualified local guidance.

A CLEAR SELLER RHYTHM

Agree on launch materials and feedback cadence.

Keep a decision file for documents, questions, and offers.

Review terms in full with appropriate professionals.

Plan your transition without assuming a particular timeline.

A private conversation, at your pace.

Blaze Beasley offers personal guidance for buyers and sellers exploring San Miguel de Allende. Begin with the questions that matter to you; there is no pressure to have every answer yet.

Start a private consultation at withbeasley.com

beasleymotion@gmail.com | +1 (210) 915-7177